

Organization	Role	Location	More Info
Embassy of Mexico	International Trade Infographic Developer The Embassy of Mexico in Canada seeks a proactive volunteer student interested in agriculture and trade. This role involves creating an engaging and informative infographic that outlines the steps required to import agricultural products from Mexico to Canada. The intern will collaborate closely with embassy staff to translate complex information into an accessible and visually appealing format. Responsibilities include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Reviewing detailed information provided by the Embassy of Mexico related to the importation of agricultural products. • Breaking down complex regulations, trade requirements, and logistical processes into simple, clear steps. • Designing a visually engaging infographic that effectively communicates the import process. Proficiency in using design tools such as Adobe Illustrator, Canva, or similar software is essential for preparing a professional and creatively sensitive visual product. This position offers the intern an excellent opportunity to develop advanced design skills while gaining valuable insight into the agricultural trade processes between Mexico and Canada. It is ideal for a student interested in international business, trade policy, or graphic design.	Sparks St between Lyon & Kent St.	Daniela Quintero (aeducan@sre.gob.mx)
Embassy of Mexico	Agricultural Trade Research and Translation Intern The Embassy of Mexico in Canada seeks a volunteer student with strong research and translation skills to assist in analyzing and summarizing information related to the agricultural aspects of the T-MEC (CUSMA) agreement. This role involves reading and synthesizing various papers and data in Spanish and creating a comprehensive English-language document that compiles and translates key findings, insights, and trends. Responsibilities include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Conduct deep analysis of academic papers, official documents, and datasets in Spanish related to the agricultural provisions and implications of T-MEC (CUSMA). • Translate findings and key information from Spanish into clear, professional English, ensuring accuracy. • Draft a new paper or report in English that combines all the research and analysis, presenting a clear overview of the topics studied. • Collaborate with embassy staff to ensure the document meets institutional standards. Proficiency in Spanish (native or advanced) and English, as well as strong written communication skills in both languages, is required. This position provides an excellent opportunity for a student to practice their research and translation skills while gaining a deeper understanding of the agricultural provisions of T-MEC (CUSMA) and their impact on bilateral trade. It is ideal for students with an interest in international relations, trade policy, or agricultural economics.	Embassy of Mexico (45 O'Connor St. Suite 10th)	Daniela Quintero (aeducan@sre.gob.mx)
Embassy of Mexico	Bilateral Commerce and Agribusiness Research Assistant The Embassy of Mexico in Canada seeks an analytical and motivated volunteer student to support research and data collection efforts related to bilateral commerce, markets, and trade in agribusiness. The primary objective of this role is to gather, analyze, and synthesize information to update and prepare a summary, written in Spanish, focused on the exportation of agricultural products from Mexico to Canada. Responsibilities include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identify and gather relevant data on bilateral trade between Mexico and Canada, focusing on agribusiness and agricultural exports. • Research market trends, trade volumes, key agricultural products, and competitive dynamics in both countries to understand the current trade relationships. • Prepare a concise, professional summary in Spanish that outlines key findings, statistics, and actionable insights for embassy staff and stakeholders. Strong written and verbal communication skills in Spanish are essential, as the summary will be written in Spanish. This position offers a unique opportunity to gain experience in trade policy, market analysis, and international commerce. The student will develop their research, data analysis, and report-writing skills. This role is ideal for individuals interested in international relations, agricultural economics, or global trade and with strong Spanish language proficiency.	Sparks St between Lyon & Kent St.	Daniela Quintero (aeducan@sre.gob.mx)